

Welcome

Thank you for your interest in working with us. Capital Theatres' mission is to be Scotland's most loved theatres, sharing extraordinary live experiences with everyone, again and again. We aim to build a sense of belonging across our three venues in Edinburgh, through the strength of our creative programme and partnerships.

This is an incredibly exciting stage of Capital Theatres' development as we evolve as an artistic hub of excellence and as an accessible community partner, committed to making a difference with the communities we serve. Edinburgh thrives on being a vibrant cultural beacon. Capital Theatres plays its part by providing an important set of venues both as a year-round source of creative engagement and entertainment and for the city's festivals.

We recently launched our new business plan which includes exciting new co-producing partnerships, an artistic talent development programme, an expansion of our health and well-being offer and re-opening the newly refurbished King's Theatre.

We could not achieve all this without the invaluable support of our generous funders and donors. As a member of the Development team, you will be at the heart of raising funds to help ensure we can deliver these future plans, supported by an enthusiastic and experienced team. If you believe you have what it takes to excel in this role we look forward to hearing from you.

7. Gibson
Chief Executive, Capital Theatres

Capital Theatres

Capital Theatres operates three busy theatre venues in Edinburgh; the Festival Theatre (1915 seats), the King's Theatre (1200 seats) and The Studio (155 seats). Capital Theatres believes that arts, culture and heritage help communities explore their identity, values and behaviours. They connect people, support education and skills development, and have a positive impact on peoples' health and wellbeing. When communities participate in cultural activities it enhances civic engagement, democracy and social cohesion.

Capital Theatres' venues make a vital contribution to Edinburgh's communities and the city's world-famous reputation and rich cultural ecology. We play a key role in the sector's contribution to the UK cultural economy. Around half a million people every year enjoy the performances on our stages, and 17,500 take part in creative activities in our venues, and in community settings.

Our vibrant theatres also support a diverse range of businesses across the UK within the performing arts, hospitality and tourism industries. We do not receive any regular funding from the Scottish Government through Creative Scotland, and our annual grant from the City of Edinburgh Council accounts for 4% of our income. 96% of our income is generated through ticket sales, trading operations and fundraising.

While we recognise we are facing a set of challenges: pressure on public services; a growing cost of living crisis; climate change, and global instability, we feel the programmes on and off our stages are more important than ever in helping provide support and social connection and encouraging empathy and critical thinking.

Equality & Diversity

Equality, diversity and inclusion (EDI) is at the heart of Capital Theatres and what we strive for as an organisation. Our aim is to increase our knowledge and experience of developing meaningful contribution to, and depth of engagement with, culture and the arts. We work towards this by taking a mainstream approach of embedding EDI into the full range of our work. Our rationale for doing this is twofold: we have a moral and social responsibility to engage with the communities we serve; we also recognise the business advantages of a broader, stimulating, programme, a more diverse audience and a wider range of skills amongst the team.

It allows us to bring a broad range of ideas, perspectives and backgrounds into the organisation and make it a great place to work. This improves cultural sensitivities, problem solving and creativity as well as bringing higher job satisfaction amongst our workforce and a sense of pride in what we do.

Our EDI strategy aims to deal with the visible and the invisible characteristics that are currently underrepresented in our work, to ensure that our theatres remain vibrant, forward thinking and welcoming so that everyone that visits and works with us feels valued, respected and listened to.

Our ambition is to achieve greater ethnic diversity representation, disability, gender, sexuality, faith, socio-economic status and age. As Scotland's largest theatre charity, our aim is to reflect the diversity of our city in the performances on our stages and in our audiences, volunteers, participants and workforce.

The Role

Development Manager for Statutory, Trusts and Foundations

This role will be instrumental to the development and delivery of Capital Theatres' ambitious fundraising strategy for the long-term sustainability of the organisation. Capital Theatres has extensive relationships with major trusts, foundations and statutory funders for example, the City of Edinburgh Council, National Lottery Heritage Fund, Creative Scotland and Cash for Kids. As we near the end of our capital fundraising for the King's Future, we will be refreshing the statutory, trust and foundation strategy to ensure as many capital funders as possible continue their support of the charity beyond the campaign, and develop relationships with new funders.

The successful candidate will be creative, proactive, and flexible, with the ability to turn their skills to unexpected challenges

We are seeking candidates with experience of

- researching trusts, foundations and statutory sources of funding
- writing persuasive funding proposals and evaluation reports which communicate complex messages to a range of audiences
- relationship building and account management with grant funders such as NLHF.

Skills and Knowledge

You will lead on

- Developing a new fundraising strategy to grow income from statutory, trusts & foundations (restricted and unrestricted/ revenue and capital)
- Growing the pipeline of funding applications including carrying out research into potential new grants
- Writing creative, high quality funding applications with colleagues across the organisation including developing budgets
- Reporting to statutory, trusts & foundations funders in ways which demonstrate the impact of the charity's work
- Maintaining accurate donor/funder records

Organisational Culture

All team members contribute to

- the organisation's strategic priority of inclusivity and sustainability
- the development of a professional working and learning environment within the organisation
- new projects and changing priorities

As this role is part of a small team, the postholder will also be expected to support on wider team projects including hosting at events, reporting to the wider team on Development progress and activities, liaising with all teams to ensure that project information and budgets are up to date, updating the website with relevant fundraising information, and credits and representing Capital Theatres at external cultivation and networking events.

Person Specification Essential

- Excellent interpersonal and relationship management skills with the ability to develop effective relationships with colleagues, funders, partners and Board Members
- Ability to organise, prioritise and execute responsibilities in the face of conflicting priorities
- Excellent written and verbal communication skills and ability to tailor your approach to your audience
- Track record of successfully raising 5 and 6 figure grants from trusts, foundations or statutory funders
- Sound financial acumen

Desirable

- Knowledge of UK charitable giving, and Fundraising Codes of Practice
- Experience of managing NLHF and major multi-year grants
- Prior use of CRM systems (e.g. Spektrix, Raiser's Edge, Tessitura, ThankQ)
- Creative and strategic approach to donor/ stakeholder/partner cultivation and long-term planning

Terms and Conditions

Our commitment to you is that we will provide a friendly, safe and healthy work environment alongside personal development and training.
